The Department of Computer Science, Sangania, organized an insightful Alumni Talk featuring Mr. Ankush Khanna, on Pathways to Success in the Software World . The session provided students with a unique opportunity to gain industry insights, explore career growth in tech, and understand emerging trends in software development.

Mr. Khanna began by sharing his personal experiences in the tech industry, reflecting on his journey from college to Google. He spoke about the challenges he faced, including the highly competitive nature of software engineering, the need for continuous learning, and the transition from academic projects to real-world problem-solving. He emphasized that persistence, strong fundamentals in data structures and algorithms, and hands-on coding experience were key factors in overcoming these challenges.

A major highlight of the session was the interactive Q&A round, where students enthusiastically engaged with Mr. Khanna. He addressed queries on technical interviews, industry expectations, AI's evolving role in development, and effective strategies for professional networking. The discussion was highly engaging, with students gaining practical insights into overcoming obstacles in the tech field.

The event concluded with Mr. Khanna's motivating words, encouraging students to stay curious, keep learning, and actively participate in coding communities. The session was a valuable and enriching experience, leaving attendees inspired and better prepared for their professional Journeys.

Conclusion:

The Alumni Talk with Mr. Ankush Khanna was an inspiring and insightful session, equipping students with valuable industry knowledge and career guidance. His experiences and advice left attendees motivated to pursue their tech careers with confidence and continuous learning.
